NORTHFIELD, MASS., FRIDAY, NOV. 1, 1929

PRICE FIVE CENTS

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Founding of Northfield Schools

Two of the First Pupils at the Seminary will Attend the Special Exercises at Chapel on Saturday

Fifty years ago Sunday, Northfield Seminary opened its doors for the first time, with 16 girls gathered together in the parlor of D. L. Moody's house, the present homestead, for the first sessions of the school. Among them were the Sikes sisters, whose meager opportunities for an education had aroused in Mr. Moody the desire to start such a school, and the following from the vicinity of Northfield: Mrs. Lula Newton Tyler, Mrs. Julia Moody Murrman, Miss Lillian C. Stebbins, Mrs. Nettie Stratton Perry, Miss Cora L. Moore, Mrs. Emma Stratton Smith, Mrs. Lucy Holton Folstead, Mrs. Harriet Fisher Clark, Mrs. Florence Caldwell Aldrich, Mrs. Edith Callender Norton, Mrs. Irene Mattoon Mann and Mrs. Cynthia Barber.

Since that time, from these meager beginnings, two institutions have grown, Mount Hermon for the boys and Northfield Seminary for girls, with a total investment in plant of $3,012,337. While the seminary opened with a faculty group of four, there are now 109 members of the combined faculty of both schools. Students have come from every State in the Union, as well as from over 55 foreign countries. In return, these schools have sent out 21,000 students to lives of usefulness all over the world.

From the beginning it has been the purpose to charge students only half of the actual cost of their tuition, although in recent years it has fluctuated, the students paying between 50 and 60 per cent themselves. D. L. Moody founded the school also with the idea of having the students share in the work of running it. Today schools where there is no economic necessity for having the students work, recognize the other education benefits from occupying the hand as well as the mind, and have adopted the same principle.

There will be special exercises at chapel Saturday morning, with Miss Nancy Comins of Amherst and Mrs. George E. Tyler of South Vernon as speakers, who were both among the first group of students at 1879.

On Sunday afternoon at Vespers, Elliott Speer, president of the Northfield schools, will speak in special commemoration of the 50th anniversary.

PLANS FOR ARMISTICE DAY ARE ANNOUNCED BY COMMITTEE

Parade, Dedication of War Memorial, Supper, Concert, War Relics and Military Ball.

Plans for the observance of Armistice Day were announced by the American Legion after a meeting of the Armistice Day committee, held at the Town hall on Tuesday evening. The Selectmen of Northfield have put the direction of the observance of the day into the hands of Haven H. Spencer Post, 179, and extensive preparations are being made for a suitable celebration of the victory and of peace. All citizens of Northfield and any visitors not taking part in the ceremonies in their own towns, are cordially invited to be present. All those men and women who have military uniforms, ex-service men, nurses, Red Cross workers, welfare workers and patriotic societies deriving from other wars, are requested to come in uniform.

The feature of this year's celebration will be the dedication of a memorial to the men and women of Northfield who served in the World War. The town is proud to be able to dedicate a tablet to no less than 90 men and women who offered their lives to the country in the last great crisis. The ceremony of unveiling will be an impressive and memorable occasion. Many of the people whose names are inscribed thereon will be present. Others have already been called by the Grahams' Commander.

The program for the day is as follows: Parade at 3 o'clock, led by the Mt. Hermon band, in which all patriotic societies are invited to take part; unveiling and dedication of the memorial at the Town hall at 4 o'clock; supper, served in the basement of the Town hall, at 6 o'clock; exhibition of war relics of historic interest not previously shown; concert of patriotic songs from 8 to 8:45 p. m., led by Goodnow's singing orchestra; dancing from 9 to 1 o'clock.

The following proclamation is issued: "As Armistice Day is the one day of the year when we not only remember the sacrifices and efforts put forth in the War to End War, but is the one day when, all over our land, men, women and children fix their minds upon the ideal of universal peace, it is urgently requested that no other public functions be held on that day, that all citizens leave their daily work and private concerns to join in the public observance of the will for peace. "The Haven H. Spencer Post, 179, American Legion. "By Robert H. Wilder, Commander."

At the opening, the students from the various dormitories marched onto the field, each dormitory in a different design of costumes. They then sang their hall songs and gave their cheers. A new feature this year was a posture contest. Two weeks previous to the field day in each dormitory observation of students postures were begun until two from each hall were chosen for excellence of posture. These 20 students paraded on the field Monday when the three students with the best postures were chosen as follows: first, Mary Carter of Hillside; second, Nell Pennell of Marquand; third, Beatrice Benway of Weston. In the tennis tournament of singles, the finals between Jane Lucas of Marquand and Eleanor Edwards of Kenhome were won by the former, 6-4, 6-1. In volleyball, Marquand won from Gould. In captain ball, East won from Moore. In hockey, the halls had been previously grouped in five groups: Gould, Marquand, East and Moore, Revell and Holton and Weston, Hillside and Connecticut and Kenhome and Hotel. The finals were played by teams from Moore and East against Marquand which resulted in a tie. The total result in largest number of points was won by East hall which received the large cup. The second cup went to Moore. Mrs. Adelaide Banney and Miss Lucile Burdham were the gymnasium teachers in charge of the day.

Practical Dishes For Dinner On Mother's Evening Out

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heins Company

EVEN on those rare occasions when mother actually takes an evening "off", she usually must plan what to leave for dinner at home. Often she is expected to prepare beforehand a complete meal which can be served easily by a hungry family unskilled in cooking. And it is surprising how easily the "motherless" dinners can be gotten together with just a little planning.

Casserole meals, which have been cooked and need only to be reheated at serving time, always are popular. While prepared foods, such as soups, baked beans and spaghetti with tomato sauce, are relished by the men folk and are ready to serve after heating. These, together with cold meats and salads and desserts from the refrigerator, give a varied menu that is enjoyed by all.

Following are several menus which women of our acquaintance have found especially pleasing to their families left at home:

Hamburg Steak Balls

Cooked Spaghetti

Cream Pudding or Ice Cream

Cold Sliced Ham Loaf

round or shoulder). Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge well with flour and brown quickly in fat which has been tried out from the meat. Avoid piercing meat with fork as this allows the inner juices to escape. Place in a casserole or deep pan and add 1 cup each of diced carrots, turnips, onions and celery. To 2½ cups boiling water, add ½ cup tomato ketchup and pour most of this sauce around the meat and vegetables. Cover closely and bake 2 hours in a slow oven, basting every half hour with the remaining sauce. The last hour, whole potatoes may be placed around the meat and baked until tender.

Quick Cold Slaw—Chop 4 cups cabbage very fine, sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Mix ½ cup mayonnaise salad dressing with 2 tablespoons pure vinegar and pour over the cabbage. Add one chopped green pepper and a grating of onion. Mix and serve on crisp lettuce leaves. This makes delicious slaw and is a splendid emergency salad.

Mince Meat Drop Cookies—

1 cup mince meat
1½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter; add sugar, beaten egg, mince meat, flour and baking powder which have been sifted together. Drop by teaspoonsful on buttered tin and bake in a hot oven for 10 minutes. This makes 30 cookies.

For the School Lunch Box

WITH September and the beginning of the school year the struggle begins to fill the lunch box with food which will keep well, be appetizing and at the same time be economical and healthy.

In this class falls the popular pea put up in a sanitary enamel lined can to preserve its color perfectly. Peas are economical of both time and money, and the protein combined with the carbohydrate, vitamins and mineral salts which the little green pellets contain makes them an excellent part of a rather substantial lunch box meal.

Some Ways to Use Them

A particularly suitable food for this purpose is Pea and Walnut Roast. To make it, mix the following in a bowl: one and one-half cups of pea pulp, one cup of soft bread crumbs, one-half cup of chopped walnuts, one-fourth cup of butter, two-thirds cup of canned tomato soup, one slightly beaten egg, and salt, pepper and onion juice to taste. Put the mixture in a buttered baking dish or loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350° F., for 30 to 45 minutes or until set and brown. This may be served at the family dinner, then, when cold, sliced, the slices wrapped in waxed paper and packed in the lunch box.

Peas in salads are always popular with child and mother. A salad made of a cup of peas, a cup of diced boiled potatoes, one-half cup of diced pickled beets and one tablespoon of chopped onions may be mixed with mayonnaise and put in a waxed paper cup with a tight-fitting cap. Gelatin salads may be packed in the original mold.

Montague

E. F. Stockwell Converts Coupe Into a Tractor

The native ingenuity of the New England Yankee has been called into play by E. F. Stockwell of Leverett road, Montague, who has for some time been making improvements upon a tractor which he constructed. Some time ago Mr. Stockwell purchased a second-hand coupe, which he speedily dismantled and put to novel purposes. He completely renovated the coupe and converted it into a tractor, by replacing the rear wheels with caterpillar wheels. For the last few months Mr. Stockwell has made use of this novel bit of equipment in many different ways. He harvested his hay and plowed his land by using this home-made device.

Of the 17 saw mills which at one time were scattered along the Saw Mill river between Montague and Leverett, but one remains. Before this territory was completely deforested, there was sufficient lumber to keep all these mills running. The effect of careless cutting and lack of conservation can be seen in the fact that there are now only three or four men kept busy at "sillings" mill instead of the far greater number who were once furnished with employment along the river.

Orange

Prefacing her giving of the drama, Miss Mayo traced enough of the history of the dramatizations of the play to give an adequate background to the audience.

Before a well filled auditorium in the Methodist Episcopal church, Miss Pauline Mayo of New York gave an interpretation of Channing Pollock's drama, "The Fool."

Miss Mayo kept her interpretation well above the ordinary level at all times; the effect of the play as given by a full company on the legitimate stage was presented as much as possible when interpreted by a single person. The conciseness of the quick dialogue was in no way lost, nor were the emotional parts overdrawn; rather, an even tempo sustained the whole showing effects of long study and care.

Colrain

The union church choir is to take part in the communion service on Sunday, Nov. 3.

The young people are to take part in the Halloween party which will be given to Methodist young people in Colrain, to be held at the parsonage in Colrain.

The young people of the Methodist church in East Colrain had another fine meeting in their chapel Sunday evening, under the leadership of Mrs. Dennison, Jr., a former school teacher in the village. Her arrangement of the topic was most suggestive and helpful. The pastor considers himself very fortunate in having such type of leadership in the community.

Conway

Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Dobson of Brookline spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Delabarre.

Mrs. George F. Howland and daughter, Priscilla, have returned from a vacation spent in Hyannis with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Marshall.

IT IS SAID THAT THE ANGELS LOVE TO HEAR THE LAUGHTER OF MEN AND WOMEN . . . AND SO DO WE . . . WHO ARE NOT ANGELS

One of Bairnsfather's cartoons that made a lasting impression upon us showed a couple of British Tommies, in war kit, on the Flanders front, evidently on their way to trench or dug-out but stopping to argue out some important question. The sky was full of aeroplanes, shells were dropping and some of them exploding all around, bullets were flying, altogether a lively battle scene. One of the Tommies was evidently scolding the other, who seemed to acknowledge the truth of what he was hearing, and the caption ran something like this: "The real trouble with you, matey, is that you are taking this war too ser-r-iously."

Now that it just what the trouble is with most of us in regard to this present life that we are living today. . . we are inclined to take it too seriously and magnify its importance. We don't presume to know anything about the countless millions of years past, or even if there was any beginning, nor yet about the eternities to come, or whether there will be any end to anything. The finite mind with which we are at present endowed cannot, of course, grasp infinity. But we do find it reasonable to conjecture that this present span of life is merely a tiny speck in the boundless eternity in which our immortal soul is functioning. Therefore, why give an anxious thought for the morrow at all and why bother (after doing our best and bravest each moment, as it comes along) overmuch, with due consideration for the decencies of life and the feelings of those around us, about the very present?

God has given us such a beautiful world to live in and offers us so many wonderful opportunities to help Him in the happiness, uplift and progress of humanity . . . and we can find so much love and nobleness in so many of those around us . . . by striving to be noble and loving ourselves . . . and, as we believe, this one little life of trials and tribulations is such an insignificant item in the glorious spread of existence. . . Why take it too seriously, except possibly for a few moments now and then, as occasion seems to require? Life and living is not, of course, just a joke or a comic . . . far from it. . . But even its terrors and suffering are bound to be only temporary and the more cheerfully we endure them the easier it is to do so and . . . by some strange anomaly . . . the less terror and suffering we will actually experience.

Of course there is a danger in going to the other extreme . . . letting everything go hang and not giving a continental damn about anything, as it were. That, of course, is just about as unsatisfactory in the long run as undue squeamishness. Balance . . . sanity . . . keeping the equilibrium . . . this, as they would say in dear old Harvard (or any other college) is the desideratum.

What we call work . . . constructive work for the livelihood of ourselves and family . . . work that we like and enjoy . . . seems to be the first consideration for maintaining this balance of equilibrium. And, when we are engaged in work that we enjoy we find that we not only get a lot of fun or enjoyment out of it ourselves but also supply a lot of fun and enjoyment for others. And (in harmony with Newton's great law of action and reaction) by this very act of giving fun and enjoyment to others we find that we receive the same, in generous measure, in return.

"THE GREAT TROUBLE WITH THE MOST OF US IS THAT WE TAKE LIFE TOO SER-R-IOUSLY."

COMMUNICATIONS

"Ditto" in Accord With
"A Northfieldian"

Boston, Mass.,
Oct. 22, 1929.

Dear Editor,

I was very much interested in a letter which appeared in "The Tri-State Weekly" a short time ago, written by one who signed himself "A Northfieldian." I have my suspicions as to who it was, but, anyway, he expressed something of what I am feeling about Northfield at the present time.

"Northfieldian" recounted an incident of a young preacher who was a bit hazy, as it were, concerning the whereabouts and the value of Northfield. I had a similar experience recently.

My watch was broken, so I took it to a jeweller near here to be repaired. When I entered the shop a fat, slummy-looking lady came forward and said that Mr. Unpronounceable was "out," and asked me to sit down. I did. Then she asked me where I lived. I told her that I existed at Boston at such and such a street, but that I considered that my home was East Northfield, Mass.

"Northfield? *-&-$?!!!!!!!"

"Yes."

"Good heavens! I don't blame you for moving away. I wouldn't live there if I had to. Didn't you just die?"

"No, certainly not. I liked it better than I do here. What makes you say that?"

"Why, there aren't any other people there your age, are there?"

"Yes, a lot."

"How did you manage to live through it?"

"Live through what?"

"Well, they do say that there you can't even smoke, or, worse still, you can't even raise tobacco there. The mayor makes everyone go to church on Sunday, and the young people have to go every day. No dancing, no movies or anything. That's all O. K. to a certain extent, but don't you think they carry it too far?"

"But not a word of that is true. It is so that Northfield is a religious center and there isn't any gala dance hall or theatre, but who in the world gave you the crazy idea that you couldn't dance or smoke if you wished, anyway?"

"Why, it must be so, or the papers wouldn't have said so, and everyone wouldn't be talking about it. You wait until Mr. Unpronounceable comes in, and ask him if it isn't true." Well, I argued until she finally said that I was certainly loyal to the awful place, anyway. We were still arguing when Mr. Unpronounceable came in. The lady asked him to verify her statements, which he did.

And now, I ask you, what does it all mean? All this tuff isn't so, of course, but it's bad publicity. Is it really true that Northfield is ridiculous in the eyes of others? Can't something be done to stop this silly idea? It may not hurt, and still it might. Think it over.

"DITTO."

P.S.—My watch still gains 15 minutes every half-hour.

Selected Recipes

Five Minute Desserts
By Betty Barclay

Quite often one requires a recipe by which a tasteful dessert may be turned out quickly. It may be wash day, unexpected guests may have arrived, or perhaps you have come home from a shopping jaunt and find the hands of the clock much farther advanced than you anticipated.

Fancy cakes and cookies can be made with a minimum of time and trouble by melting marshmallows, peanut brittle, nougat or caramels, over hot water and adding to wafers. For instance, saltine wafers may be spread with marshmallows, topped with chopped nuts, and browned in the oven. Vanilla snaps may be put together as a sandwich with peanut brittle or caramels, softened to spread. Ginger snaps make a good combination with a sandwich filling of softened nougat, while many of the candies sold in small packages may be melted and added to a sauce for ice cream, or added to a simple foundation filling for cake.

Or drop three or four candies of different colors in the center of your grapefruit—instead of sugar. Let them dissolve and sweeten the fruit, and give it a little different flavor than usual.

MOWING MACHINE FACTORY ENLARGES

Granite State Increasing Capacity of Plant About 75 Per Cent.

The Granite State Mowing Machine Co. of Hinsdale, N. H., is enlarging its factory where the well-known State lawn mowers are manufactured. The new addition will increase the capacity of the plant about 75 per cent.

Lawn mowers have been made at Hinsdale since previous to 1860 and the new addition will provide for the increased capacity made necessary through the extension of this business not only in this country, but in foreign lands.

The company ships its products, consisting of about 15 types of high-grade lawn mowers and their patent capitol trimming and edging machine, all over the United States and to many foreign countries.

Corrected Statements by Mrs. Camille Passeneau

The following are corrected statements by Mrs. Camille Passeneau, mother of Leo Passeneau, who was accidentally shot and killed on Sunday, Oct. 20, last:

"The sad accident, resulting fatally to Leo Passeneau in the woods on Sunday, Oct. 20, was no doubt an accident, as both boys were very fond of each other. How it occurred, no one knows, as the Maszurski boy is so distracted, he tells different stories. Leo Passeneau was not presented a gun by his parents, as was previously stated. It was given him by a friend, who said the boy was all right with a gun.

"If the boys were violating the law, at target practice, the authorities are not without knowing that a number of boys have guns and use them everywhere about town. The law should be enforced to protect other boys.

"No doctors could be had at the time of the accident, Mr. and Mrs. Passeneau found, and hurried their boy at once to the hospital. Rev. Father Howard and Father Duffy administered the last sacrament. The bearers at the funeral last Wednesday morning were altar boys from St. Joseph's church, who met the body at the door. Requiem high mass was sung. The altar boys also accompanied the body to the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery. Those from out of town who attended the funeral were Fred Passeneau of Longmeadow, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Abbott of Keene, N. H.; Miss Delphine Passeneau of Springfield, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. A. Lachance of Greenfield, Mass."

First Congregational Church Hinsdale, N. H.

Johnson A. Haines, Minister.
The attendance at church last Sunday was 59.

The pastor conducted the service of worship in the County Farm in Westmoreland at 2 p. m. Sunday. Members of the choir assisted.

The annual fair is only a month away. The play to be given on the second evening is, "Ace High." It is a play of the same sterling character as that given last year, and many of the same faces will be seen in the cast. You know what that indicates.

The Guest book has been delivered to those who have signed cards. Let us begin reading this book on Monday of this week, reading one page each day until the book is completed.

There are a few copies still in hand. Any person desiring one may have same, as long as they last, by speaking to the pastor.

Travel

The enthusiasm of traveling seems to be nearly everyone's desire. To me, traveling designates the best ideal of education one can get. Many foreign countries, such as Italy, Switzerland and France, display the historical and also the modernistic point of view. Thousands of people desirous of visiting the most beautiful spots select the Alps mountains as a pleasure resort. Others seeking the historical locations visit Rome.

Then there are the noted cities of Paris and London, from which come our latest styles, Venice, Versailles and Moscow. The beautiful country of Egypt and the Nile Valley, the Sahara desert and the Suez canal would appeal to the eye of most any tourist.

I am sure that all who have read the sacred story of Jesus would be more than pleased to cross the Red Sea into Jerusalem and see the city in which Our Savior was born.

Ever mindful of the spot where Magellan lost his life, one might travel through India, where many precious gems and costly silks are obtained and cross the Indian ocean to that island on which so long ago the ships which encircled the globe left their brave master lifeless, only to be buried in the deep waters over which they had passed.

Then onto the rolling Pacific toward the beautiful continent of Australia brings us nearer the South pole, where Commander Byrd is now making a most fruitful expedition.

Sailing northward on the Pacific, one discovers a beautiful island abounding in green palm trees. Many dark-colored natives grace the shores and huts thatched with straw dot the island here and there. As we draw near, the melodious strains of a Hawaiian guitar resound among the winds which are speedily guiding us northward.

Now Alaska's snow-capped mountains beam forth in the glowing sunlight. Over their crests appear a train of Alaskan dogs followed by their master. The Mackenzie river, with its rolling waters, attracts one's attention as it flows on its way from the Arctic ocean.

Nearing home, after a delightful travel abroad, one passes through Canada, a most interesting country under the Empire of Great Britain. Across the St. Lawrence river, one arrives among the rising peaks of the White mountains—the Presidential range. Such an eventful journey would be a luxurious and satisfying evidence that traveling abroad would impress on one's mind the advantages of getting an education by traveling.

FRUITS FOR FALL

IN ancient times fruit was usually eaten raw as the climax of a gorgeous banquet. The peaches of Persia, the plums of Japan, the pomegranate of Asia were all made famous in this fashion.

But as modern cooks began to vie with each other, more and more concoctions containing fruits began to appear in the homes of the wealthy. And what a great to-do there was about these new desserts!

They were confined to the homes of the rich, because in those days fruits were a luxury. When pineapples were newly introduced to Europe from South America they had to be grown in greenhouses and cost at least a guinea apiece. In the winter, when the weather was cold, the monied classes of Europe depended entirely on greenhouses for their fruits, or, in the South, on imports from the warmer Asian countries.

Then and Now

It was not until the middle of the last century that Nicholas Appert, the French genius, discovered the method which has given us fruit the year around—canning. Today, no one considers going without fruit in the winter any more than in the summer. The only difference is that when fresh fruits are expensive, canned ones are used in their place. When fruit is to be used in cooking, canned fruit is employed. Canned pineapple is always used in making gelatin desserts because the fresh pineapple contains an enzyme which will prevent the gelatin from solidifying. If fresh pineapple is to be used, it must first be thoroughly cooked—and what a waste of time and labor that is, when there on the shelf is a can of pineapple all ready to use.

In the days of the Holy Roman Empire, Egypt used to be the center for growing prune plums. But the voyage from Egypt to Rome was so long that the fruit would spoil, so the inventive Egyptians evolved the system of drying the fruit before shipping. For hundreds of years the same method was followed, but today fresh prunes are being canned just as is any other fruit; the only difference is that the prunes are particularly good for they contain a large amount of fruit sugar.

Rare Fruits in Cans

Some of the fruits canned today are rarely seen in any other form. Loganberries, those luscious red fruits which are longer and tangier than a red raspberry, are so delicate that they will not stand shipment well. Consequently, few find their way to market in fresh form from their home in Washington and Oregon. The larger part of the crop is canned in sanitary enamel lined cans which preserve their color perfectly, and are then shipped to the consumer.

Many of the other canned fruits, especially brightly colored ones, are put up in these sanitary enamel lined cans to preserve their color and appearance. These include, in addition to loganberries, apple butter; cherries, black, red and white; cranberries; fruits for salad; grapes; prunes in syrup; raspberries, black and red; rhubarb; strawberries and wine fruit salad.

The fruits which are obtainable in ordinary sanitary cans are apples, baked; apple sauce; apples, sliced and whole; apricots, halves and whole; blackberries; blueberries; crabapples; currants; figs; fruit cocktails; gooseberries; grapefruit; peaches, diced, halves, sliced and whole; pears, halves and whole; Hawaiian pineapples, crushed, fingers, sliced and tidbits; plums; prunes, dry; quinces and raisins.

A survey of these lists shows how varied and comprehensive they are. There are very few of the temperate zone fruits which cannot be enjoyed in winter as well as in summer.

New Uses for Fruits

For fall and winter use, ingenious cooks have designed new and delicious recipes. Glorious waffles, for instance, which will be acclaimed at any Sunday night supper contain pineapple. To make the waffles, beat three egg yolks well and add one and three-fourths cups of milk. Sift two cups of flour with four teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt; add to first mixture. Stir in six tablespoons of melted butter and two-thirds cup of drained, crushed pineapple. Fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on a hot waffle iron right at the table. Serve with pineapple syrup and pass cubes of plain American cheese.

Canned fruits are also delicious for sherbet bases. A new product, crushed peaches, which is made of fruit which is not fully colored or of a commercial size, but which is sweet and piquant, is much used in pie fillings, ice cream, as a marmalade and in made desserts.

Every day new canned fruits appear or familiar fruits are canned in a new way. How envious the old-time epicures would be if they could see our array of forty-two possible fruits for dessert reposing on our pantry shelves in the winter.

"I've Been Reading"

By WILDER BUELL

VICTIM AND VICTOR, by John R. Oliver, Macmillan, pages 435, price $2.50.

In a neighboring town there once lived an old man. He was an eccentric person with a flare for experimenting in some kind of chemical research. He had a laboratory out near the railroad tracks and carried on mysterious activities which were not understood by his fellow townsmen. To them he was an old pest, and more than a bit of a nuisance.

He was always getting into rows with the more prominent of the local politicians and was suspected of being queer in the head. In an older day he would have been called a wizard, and perhaps burned.

Three years went by and the day came when his invention, a method of extracting vanilla, came to the attention of the scientific world. To the astonishment of his neighbors, there resented the scientific societies of the British Empire and, with suitable ceremonies, handed him one of the highest honors that can be bestowed upon a scientist.

But did this impress his neighbors and win for him the respect of the town? It did not. He was still looked upon as a not very intelligent person and is remembered to this day chiefly as the author of a pamphlet, which was a scathing indictment of some of the petty graft and meanness of the town, and was entitled, "What Jesus Christ Would Do if He Should Come to Montague."

The theme is one that fascinates authors more prominent than this unfortunate scientist. Without saying exactly what they mean in so many words, many writers have taken for their subject the man of unusual spiritual powers who is a nonconformist in the community in which he lives and have shown him as persecuted by various institutions, especially the church. The moral is, usually, that the church is more noted for worldly aggrandisement than for spirituality.

Such, in general, is the story of this book. But it is not entirely convincing. In the first place, the protagonist is not a nonconformist who is thrown out of the church, in this case the Episcopal church, for heresy. He is a man who wants more than anything in the world to be a conformist. But he cannot control an unruly nature and is difficult to get along with, is altogether an undisciplined and somewhat abnormal character, but without a spark of spiritual originality. After reading it, you sympathize with the bishop rather than with the persecuted hero.

I was reminded somewhat of a book by Henry Snyder Harrison that came out just before the war and made a sensation. It was called V. V. S. Eyes (Houghton Mifflin). The two books are not alike. But there is a similarity in the theme. And I liked the Harrison book much better. The introduction of a psychiatrist into the Oliver book, designed to give it a modern touch, does not, in my opinion, redeem it from being essentially out of date in point of view and philosophic tone.

It is well done, however, and will be liked by those who believe that spiritual power and understanding are special gifts that have nothing to do with brains or character, but are received direct from some outer source like, to use the author's simile, the sound waves in a radio set. To those of that way of thinking, I believe this book will hold a thrill.

They'll Enjoy Beans For A Quick Meal

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

HOW many times a dish of beans has saved the day in an emergency! This ever popular food comes to the front when supper must be hurried "so that we can get started," or when Jimmy has been sick all day and required all of mother's time, or in any of the other inevitable household emergencies which require quick meal preparations.

Oven baked beans are an excellent food from the standpoint of nutrition, as well as of taste. They rank very high in the list of foods which furnish iron to the body, and also are a valuable source of calcium, phosphorus and other minerals.

Oven baked beans may be quickly adapted to form many other delicious dishes; and the following recipes suggest a few of the many unusual luncheon and supper treats into which a can of baked beans may be transformed:

Bean Rarebit—To 2 cups scalded milk, add 1 medium can oven baked beans which have been mashed fine. Add ½ cup finely chopped American cheese, and stir constantly over a slow fire until cheese is melted. Add 4 tablespoons flour, blended with ¼ cup cold water, to slightly thicken. Cook for several minutes. Season with salt and pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Serve on slices of buttered toast. This is an unusual and delightful supper or luncheon dish.

Baked Bean Soufflé—Mash 1 cup oven baked beans and 2 tablespoons tomato ketchup, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cream or milk, and 2 beaten egg yolks. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, and bake in a buttered dish for about 20 minutes. This makes a delightful fluffy dish.

Baked Bean Cutlets—Mash fine 3 cups oven baked beans. Add 1 cup bread crumbs; 2 eggs slightly beaten; 2 tablespoons melted butter; and salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce and onion juice to season. Shape into cutlets. Dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs again. Brown in a skillet with 3 tablespoons fat. Serve with tomato sauce. (Cream of tomato soup, heated and thickened with a small amount of flour, makes an excellent, quick tomato sauce.)

Baked Bean Delight—1 can oven baked beans
2 small onions
2 small green peppers
1 cup grated cheese
Mix beans, chopped onions and green peppers. Place in a buttered baking dish and top with grated cheese. Bake in a slow oven for 30 minutes.

NEW ENGLAND
QUALITY LABEL

Fast Coming Into Extensive Use
And Proving Just as Helpful
as Expected

With the advent of the market of New Hampshire graded eggs in special cartons bearing the "New England Quality Label," every one of the six States is now selling locally produced eggs on a quality basis. In all of the States, local agricultural officials have had the co-operation of the S. C. E. Box Co. of Palmer, Mass., which makes all the egg boxes used by the producers selling under the New England label.

Increased interest in the New England Council Farm Marketing Program has been created throughout New England agricultural production areas as a result of the booklet, "More Profit for the New England Farmer," which has been published and distributed by the marketing commissioners of the six State Departments of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Council. The booklet tells exactly what the New England farmer can do to increase his profits and how it is proving useful to the farmers. In this connection, reports coming in from bureaus of markets and other official sources show products carrying the "New England Quality Label" to be bringing the farmers additional returns over what ungraded produce would bring.

A plan to authoritatively identify and properly grade locally produced turkeys was the subject of a meeting of representative turkey growers of Massachusetts in conference with officials of the State Department of Agriculture and the Massachusetts Agricultural College, held at the State House, Boston.

The turkey growers represented were unanimous in opinion that identification is desirable and in fact imperative as local turkey production continues to expand, because of the all-too-common practice in some markets of misrepresenting many high grade western turkeys as of Vermont and other local origin.

The present status of the distribution of New England Quality Labels and standard State containers is as follows:

Maine—8,000 eggs cartons; 19,000 special labels for potato cartons; 28,000 potato tags bearing New England label, representing 100 cartons of potatoes.

New Hampshire—20,000 egg labels. Vermont—135,000 is the total number of labels sold, mostly for maple products; 2,000 egg cartons; 20,000 honey labels.

Massachusetts—335,000 egg labels; 20,000 egg inserts; 60,000 egg cartons; 30,000 apple labels; 40,000 asparagus labels; 4,000 certified baby chick labels.

Rhode Island—575,000 egg labels; 50,000 egg cartons; 7,000 apple labels. Connecticut—633,000 egg labels; 75,000 asparagus labels; 5,000 celery wrappers; 111,000 egg cartons; 85,000 egg inserts; 30,000 apple labels.

Make Your Candy
With Vinegar

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

FOR making uniformly fine grained, creamy confections, a few drops of pure cider vinegar, added before cooking, seems actually to perform miracles. The vinegar changes sugar to a form that does not crystallize readily, thus keeping the candy or frosting light and creamy. Even if one is so busy that the cooking pan remains on the fire a moment too long, the candy stays creamy—and vinegar is such a simple thing to use for this purpose; it is always on hand in every-one's kitchen.

The next time you make a frosting, or candy, try adding a few drops of pure cider vinegar. You will be delighted with the results. One teaspoon of vinegar to two cups of sugar is the quantity generally used. You may enjoy trying some of these delicious recipes today:

White Mountain Cream Frosting
2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon pure cider vinegar

Cook without stirring, over a very slow fire, until the frosting forms a thread that does not shrink back to the pan and does not have little bubbles on it when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Remove from the fire and pour slowly, beating constantly, over 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Beat until creamy. Flavor and spread over cake.

Peanut Butter Fudge—Mix thoroughly 2 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup milk, 2 heaping tablespoons peanut butter and 1 teaspoon pure cider vinegar. Boil slowly, without stirring, until when a few drops are poured into a cup of cold water a firm ball is formed. Remove from fire, cook until luke warm and beat until creamy. Pour into buttered pan and cut into squares.

Divinity Fudge—Mix 2 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup corn syrup, ½ cup cold water and 1 teaspoon vinegar. Cook slowly, without stirring, until the mixture forms an almost brittle ball in cold water. Pour over 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten, and beat until creamy. Add 1 cup nutmeats and vanilla. Pour into a buttered pan and mark into squares.

Peanut and Coconut Balls—(This recipe is so simple that you may let the children try it.)
1½ cups coconut
½ cup peanut butter
½ teaspoon vanilla
Mix all ingredients thoroughly, and roll into small balls. Chill and serve.

Pulled Taffy—
2 cups light brown sugar
¼ cup molasses or corn syrup
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons vanilla

Boil first five ingredients until, when tried in cold water, the mixture becomes brittle. Add butter and vanilla. Turn into a buttered pan and as soon as cold enough to handle, pull, being careful to use only tips of fingers. Stretch in a long rope and cut into ¼ inch lengths.

Chestnuts Once Again To Be Found Here

Eugene Vaughn of Millers Falls, while out hunting yesterday in the vicinity of the Oriole Tea Room on the Northfield road, discovered a chestnut tree and brought home several handfuls of chestnuts. Mr. Vaughn states that the tree was of second growth. It is understood that the tree warden of the town of Montague intends to plant chestnut trees along the banks of Lake Pleasant. A few years ago this section of the State was noted for its large number of chestnut trees, but blight developed and killed off nearly all of the trees, and today a tree of this species is considered a rarity.

Autumn Salads

WITH autumn come the popular fall fruits and vegetables—apples, pears, cabbage, carrots, and so on. And with fall comes the holiday season, with parties happening thick and fast. So the enterprising housewife is on the alert for recipes which can be used either for home or for company use. The recipes given below are for salads which utilize autumn foods in novel and delicious ways.

Some Tempting Recipes

Sparkling Salad: Soak two tablespoons of gelatin in two tablespoons of water and dissolve in one-third cup of boiling water. Add three tablespoons of vinegar, two tablespoons of lemon juice, one-third cup of sugar and one teaspoon of salt. Chill, and add two cups of lime-flavored carbonated beverage, one cup of shredded cabbage, one and one-half cups of well-drained, canned peas and one-half cup of diced celery. Chill in molds and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Beet and Pepper Salad: Chill and drain the contents of an eight-ounce can of beets. Add two large green peppers, finely shredded. Toss with French dressing flavored with minced chives and parsley. Serve on lettuce and garnish with capers.

Cranberry and Cabbage Salad: Crisp in ice water, drain and dry two cups of shredded cabbage. Mix with one cup of diced, sliced pineapple, one-half cup of salted peanuts and one-half cup of cranberry sauce. Moisten with mayonnaise and serve in lettuce cups.

A combination of canned peas, diced apples and diced celery, marinated and then moistened with mayonnaise and garnished with walnuts also makes a most appetizing fall salad.
